

Stamford Museum & Nature Center holds annual Maple Sugar Festival

The Stamford Museum & Nature Center held its annual Maple Sugar Festival on Saturday.

Chris Janocha, 17, of Stamford Boy Scouts, Troop 11, tastes the maple syrup his troop made using the "colonial method" with an iron pot on a tri-pod stand and wood fire to make maple syrup during the annual Maple Sugar Festival sponsored by First County Bank at the Stamford Museum & Nature Center, Stamford, Conn., Saturday, March 5, 2016. Will Kies, the director of Education at the center, said that the festival has been taking place since the mid-70s and that he hopes it will teach, promote and celebrate the Maple season that marks the spring season.

Read More: <http://www.stamfordadvocate.com/local/article/Stamford-Museum-Nature-Center-holds-annual-6873886.php#photo-9551801>